Thus the heart makes wailing moan
For fair angels that have flown,
And we know they'll ne'er return,
While the sun and stars shall burn,
But we may go to them.

A Mother Gone.

Eva Maythaller was born in the state of Baden, Germany, March 5, 1820. She was the only child of her parents. In the year 1850 she was married to George Meier, in the state of Baden, Germany. Her husband was a farmer, and they lived on the farm until his death in 1878. Three sons, George, born in 1852, Jacob born in 1854, Ferdinand born in 1856, and one daughter, Kathrina born in 1859, wife of George Joseph Trosmiller, were born.

After the death of Mr. Meier, the widow remained on the farm, and aided by the youngest son, Ferdinand conducted the work. During the Franco-Prussian War, the widow and daughter were eye witnesses to the battles of Schlettstadt and Strasburg, and the young girl was much frightened by the scenes of war.

The father of Mr. Trosmiller; who was a lieutenant in the Black Cavalry, was killed before Strasburg, while storming a fort.

In 1888, Mrs. Meier sold her property in Baden. The two oldest boys first, then the daughter, then the widow and youngest son came to Johnstown, Pa. Here Jacob was married and still lives at Johnstown having a family of four children. The eldest, George is also at Johnstown, but Ferdinand lives at Kittanning. These sons are unmarried.

At Johnstown Kate became acquainted with G. J. Trosmiller and they were —J. M. Dailey, who secured the subscriptions which built the original sidewalk to the depot, is making an effort to get an order from court to have the sidewalks repaired at the expense of the township. It is to be hoped that he will succeed, as this is the easiest and best way to get this necessary work done.

In Memoriam.

May Della Sturgis Woodward was born at Wellsville, Allegheny Co. N. Y., on Jan. 29, 1869. Her parents were Byron Sturgis and Amanda B. Foster. She was the only child. Her father died when she was three weeks old. Her mother afterward married Chas. Sevier and the family moved to Emporium and afterwards to Ridgway. On June 22, 1891, she was married at Buffalo, N. Y. to Geo. R. Woodward by Willis P. O'Dell, pastor of the Delaware Avenue M. E. church.

The couple came to Penfield to live. A little girl was born June 18, 1893, and from the birth the health of Mrs. Woodward failed. She caught cold from the changing of sheets on the bed, and pneumonia attacked her, developing afterwards into consumption. The baby Meribah, died on Sep. 15, 1893, and the mother's health grew continually poorer. Everything that love could prompt was done to stay the power of the grim destroyer. In December last she was taken to the famous Dr. Amich of Cincinnati, but he gave but scant hope.

On Thursday morning June 20, 1895, at 5 o'clock the long struggle ended and she ceased to live.

The funeral was on Saturday, June 22, at 2:30 p. m. at the farm house home, Rev. S. Ham of the Methodist church and T. B. Buoy Director in charge. W. H. Crocker, Esq. of Ridgway brought a most beautiful gift of flowers, and Mrs. Lyn Jordan, her daughters, Mamie and Tillie, and Mrs. Loyd Ward also generously

At Johnstown Kate became acquainted with G. J. Trosmiller and they were married April 14, 1884. The couple began housekeeping in Johnstown but in 1886 moved to Penfield, Pa where they now live. Mrs. Meier, after coming to the United States, lived with her son Jacob at Johnstown, until 1889 when she came to Penfield, and made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Trosmiller until her death. She had a pleasant home and enjoyed the evening of her life very much.

Mrs. Meier was baptised in infancy into the German Lutheran church, and was a faithful member during her long life, attending church regularly. While she lived at Penfield, she regularly accompanied some of her grand children to the church services of the town. Her last visit to church was to the Children's Day Service in the Presbyterian church, on June 16th.

Mrs. Meier always enjoyed excellent health, never having been sick and not taking any medicine. She was taken ill on June 20, the symptoms being those of a natural decline. Dr. J. H. Kline was summoned and gave remedies, but the end was near, and she grew gradually weaker until Tuesday morning June 25, at 6 o'clock, when she ceased to breathe. When she was told that there was no hope of recovery, she said "God's will be done, and passed away without sorrow or fear.

The funeral was held at the home in South Penfield on Thursday, June 27, at 10 a. m. Rev. S. Ham of the Methodist church preached and T. B. Buoy was Director.

The sons George and Ferdinand were present. After the services the aged form was tenderly borne to Penfield Cemetery, where it was laid to rest until the last trumpet shall call forth all the dead.

gave flowers. The beautiful arrangement of the wreaths was the work of Miss May Bird and Mrs. Frank Hendricks. The attendance at the funeral was very large including the leading people of the town.
